

Darren Stanton

Psychological Performance Training

There's one thing you should know about me. I specialise in a very specific type of change, - subconscious change.

For the past ten years, I have earned my living stepping inside people's heads. They say that humans use less than 5% of the brain, the unconscious mind however can use infinite amounts.

Within the first 3 minutes of me meeting someone, they will leak more unconscious information to me through their body posture, language and lots of other ways than they will ever know or realize

It is through the information they give me that allows me to navigate the architecture of the mind, you see, the mind cannot distinguish between things real and imagined, this is where amazing powerful changes can occur.

It's not what happens to us in life, if how we see it, once there, I gain an understanding how you are processing a specific situation or issue. Through my own unique methods developed over many years, you can make changes in minutes that last a lifetime. I know because I have trained thousands of people how to achieve their dreams and seen miraculous things happen.

Would you like to be powerfully confident? How would it be if you could overcome fears and phobias in minutes you have held for decades? Give powerful and enigmatic presentations like some of the world's most charismatic people.

Learn powerful skills of unconscious rapport building together with influence and persuasion that will skyrocket your results to a whole different level.

Let me teach you how to ignite your passion, motivation and the belief in yourself to achieve whatever you want. Discover the art and science of micro expressions, the psychology behind spotting when others are lying to you. I can show you all of the secrets that until now have only been available to the powerfully rich.

I look forward to you meeting yourself soon.
